By FRANK GERVASI

ROME, Nov. 6.—Creating a new alignment in Europe and the far east, the Italo-German-Japanese pact against communism was formally signed today.

The new accord, which brings Italy into the anti-red bloc formerly existing between Germany and Japan, has aroused considerable apprehension in European democratic nations, particularly Britain and France.

In addition, Soviet Russia has taken no pains to conceal her deep annoyance over the accord, which Moscow considers a distinct threat.

Pact Ceremony.

The pact was signed ceremoniously in the Palazzo Chigi this morning. Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano acted for Italy, Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop for Germany and Ambassador Hotta for Japan.

It was learned the pact consists of a preamble and protocol, to which Italy adhered as an original signatory.

A summary of the text of the accord declared Italy adhered to it "because the Communist International continues to place in constant

DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

(International News Service)
PARIS, Nov. 6.—Possibility that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor may return to Austria and go into seclusion "until the world forgets" arose today following their sudden decision to cancel their proposed visit to the United States.

This possibility was openly discussed by the entourage of the famous couple—an entourage still dazed by the suddenness of the duke is "pro-Nazi" or "anti-everything."

While their entourage speculated, the duke and duchess, depressed by cancellation of the trip to which they had been looking forward so eagerly, considered where next to go.

Some Progress On Labor Peace

Monday At National Capital

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Committees of labor's warring factions retired to their prospective camps today to gird themselves for new "peace" conferences beginning Monday.

In the good old horse and buggy days farmers used to drive about New Castle at this season of the year with a barrel of cider on the rear ends of their wagons. The end-gates were usually removed and the barrel protruded far enough to allow the big wooden spigot to function. There was a fascination in watching the farrier draw that cider and a joy in drinking it. Just another of those pleasures gone, but not forgotten.

Advance guard of the home-made country sausage tasters toured the north hill district yesterday and did quite a thriving business, despite the fact that he was charging thirty-four cents a pound for his product. Genuine country sausage is all pig, and when enough lean is mixed with the fat, and there are the right proportions of salt, pepper and sage, it's hard for one to keep from making a hog of himself.

Friday was a good day for those hunters who have to catch their rabbits by putting salt on their tails. The rain moistened the leaves and grass, and it was quite easy to slip up behind bunny when he wasn't looking. If a lot more hunters would use salt instead of shotguns, there wouldn't be such a large list of casualties during the hunting season.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6.—Despite Chinese preference for President Roosevelt instead of Chancellor Hitler as a mediator of the far eastern war, the Chinese government today speedily embraced a chance to gain some advantage from the Nazi Fuerher's reported mediation offer.

Chen Kung-Po, chief of the publicity department of the Chinese government, was immediately instructed to fly to Germany and contact Hitler.

Chen is an intimate friend of China's generalissimo, Chiang Kai-Shek, is one of the biggest bosses of the Kuomintang and formerly was minister of agriculture. As such he did much business with the Germans.

Greta Garbo Going Back To Homeland

Plans To Spend Eight Or Nine Months Resting In Sweden

(International News Service)

Close friends revealed this today, and behind her decision to go—"almost any day now"—lies an odd story.

Garbo, now 31, is undecided as to her future, and she wants a few months at home to make one of the most important decisions of her life.

She is torn between two flags, it was disclosed by her intimates.

On the one hand, she has an almost fanatical desire to retire and live a cloistered existence there on her estate near Stockholm.

On the other hand, Miss Garbo holds a deep regard and affection for the country which gave her fame and fortune, and she may decide to make her future permanent home here, taking out citizenship papers.

Loyal to both Sweden and America, Miss Garbo does not know what to do, and it is for that reason she wants to go home and think it all over.

Garbo plans to remain at home for eight or nine months, where she can rest, decide her future and regain her normal strength.

Poppy Day, an annual event here under the auspices of the American Legion or its auxiliary, is being observed here today, under the auspices of the auxiliary, and a good response was reported this morning by leaders of the auxiliary.

Over a hundred high school girls are aiding the auxiliary women in the sale, and were on the streets at an early hour this morning to greet the early risers.

The sale will be continued throughout the day, the proceeds being devoted to the auxiliary's welfare program. These poppies are made in veterans hospitals by disabled war veterans, a portion of the proceeds going to them as a means of making a little spending money.

It added that Italy enters and agrees to participate fully in the pact against the Communist International and also agrees to be considered as an original signatory.

DUKE AND DUCHESS PLAN FOR FUTURE

In London, nowhere confirmed, that the duke might even visit Soviet Russia, mainly to indicate to American labor circles that he was devoid of Nazi sympathies.

Rumors Bring Laughter

These rumors, however, brought only laughter from the duke's equerry, Dudley Fordwood, who said: "The duke and duchess are remaining in Paris for the present. Naturally they have no plans yet, since their decision was taken at the last minute. It is a great pity—really, a great pity."

"I cannot understand the misconception in America of the duke's attitude."

If the duke and duchess decide against seclusion in Austria, which would be distasteful to them, they may go to the Chateau De Cande in France, near Monts—the huge ancient chateau owned by Bedaux where they were married. Bedaux is said to have offered them the chateau for "as long as they like."

Or they may visit Scandinavian countries, noted for model housing projects, in which the duke is so interested.

Crowds Of Curious

Paris, Nov. 6.—After a worried semi-sleepless night, the Duke of Windsor arose at 6 a.m. today to answer personally a few cables relating to cancellation of the trip he and the duchess were to take to the United States.

The duke instructed his secretary to take care of most of the messages, however.

The duchess remained in her room after both she and the duke ate a breakfast consisting of his special brand of tea and toast. They appeared calm after their sudden change in plans, but the scenes outside their hotel were reminiscent of those just after former King Alfonso of Spain abdicated and took refuge in Paris.

Crowds of curious spectators swelled the ranks of a hundred news photographers, news reel men and reporters who swarmed inside and outside the hotel, while other hundreds jammed the nearby sidewalks.

Japanese had scored victories on all fronts at the moment they consider most important to impress the nine power treaty conference at Brussels.

Critical For Chinese

As a result the military situation around Shanghai is rapidly developing into a critical stage for the Chinese.

The vanguard of the Japanese force which landed at Hangchow bay, to the south, is now only four miles from the nearby walled town of Sungkiang, which recently was reduced to ashes by a Nipponese aerial attack.

The first major objective of the new Japanese drive is Sungkiang, which will be used as a base for further operations after it is captured.

Meanwhile, Japanese troops on Shanghai's western front succeeded in bridging Soochow creek, although the Chinese still are holding Pearce road.

Military observers estimated the Japanese forces in the Shanghai area soon will total 200,000 men.

LAWRENCE CHAPTER INSPECTS POTTERY

Following the lead of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Lawrence Chapter on Thursday, November 4, toured the plant of the Shenango Pottery as a part of the program to familiarize themselves with local industries.

Departing from their regular schedule, members of Lawrence Chapter were requested to meet at the Shenango Pottery. There through the courtesy of its president, James M. Smith, they were permitted to tour the plant and observe the making of American Haviland china.

Groups of twenty-five members, were conducted through the various departments and, as the tour advanced, they watched with increasing interest the skilled artisans at their tasks as each one performed his, or her, part in the making of this beautiful ware.

Owners of imported Haviland china could detect no difference in the wares except that the basic color of the French china is a creamy white, while the American made is a pure white.

Upon completion of the tour, the members held a short business session in the display room and discussed matters of impending interest. The new regent, Mrs. F. G. Simonton, presided.

Mrs. E. J. Blanning, of Highland avenue, will be the hostess for the December meeting.

SANCTITY OF TREATIES

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL made another eloquent address at Toronto recently in which he emphasized the international necessity of keeping treaties and of punishing those "by peaceable means" who fail to keep these treaties.

There is no question as to the idealistic motives of Mr. Hull. Unfortunately however, idealism is a very poor and often dangerous weapon to use in modern diplomatic contest.

Of course nations ought to keep their treaties, as gentlemen keep their pledged word. But unfortunately nations often forget this, just as gentlemen sometimes forget they are gentlemen, or disagree as to the interpretation of the pledges they have given.

As a matter of fact, treaties between warring nations have usually been violated by one nation or another in the past, and no nation is singularly innocent in this matter. Usually the nations which are satisfied with the last war settlement will talk a great deal about the sacredness of treaties, while those who were disappointed with the enforced results of the last general agreements are anxious to find a way to repudiate them.

In the present instance there is disagreement between the nations which have all the territory they need and those who think they have not enough. And much of the territory now held by the contented nations was gained for them by the same kind of bloody conquest that the "have not" nations now intend to pursue. This is a deplorable situation when measured by standards of righteousness and ethics but we are confronted not by a theory but by a condition.

Of course, two wrongs do not make a right. If we are to have peace, nations ought to keep peace treaties. But the overwhelmingly important question is: how are we going to make them do it? That the miracle can be accomplished by peaceful means is extremely doubtful. No nation violates a treaty until it has considered all the possible consequences and is willing to risk war, if necessary, to win its ends. And no nation is going to submit tamely to economic strangulation. Better to go down fighting than slowly to starve to death.

All of these facts must be faced, and they cannot be faced by uttering idealistic international platitudes. It may be true, as Mr. Hull declared, that a nation which elects the policy of isolation will have to pay an "inexorable price." But what about the nation which elects to poke its diplomatic nose into the affairs of other nations? Isn't this apt to be even more costly?

FREE PUNCTUATION

The abolition by the telegraph companies of charges for punctuation marks is a boon to literature and enlightenment. Or at least to the clarity of telegraph messages. There may be no more such cryptic communications as "Start service stop bill monthly stop usual terms". The companies, in a wild burst of generosity, have announced that they will transmit commas, periods, dashes, hyphens, colons, semicolons, parentheses, quotation marks, apostrophes and question marks for patrons literate enough to desire such accessories.

There are limits, though. It is not regarded as sporting to demand free exclamation points, asterisks and brackets, so patrons will have to pay the freight on them. But these reservations themselves constitute a public service. Who wants to get telegrams bristling with exclamation points? And brackets always remind us of income taxes. As for asterisks, they should be taxed on general principles, and this wise discrimination will probably result in their disappearance from syndicated columns.

BRAZIL STOPS BEING SANTA CLAUS

Not only as the world's largest consumer of coffee, but as a country which has been subjected to a variety of experiments in crop control and price-fixing, the United States is keenly interested in Brazil's sudden abandonment of her thirty-year-old program for regulating coffee production and prices.

The costly attempt to repeal the law of supply and demand has apparently been given up as a bad job. The scheme has had its ups and downs during a period which has provided many object lessons in other countries of its economic futility, including the expensive experiment of the British with rubber.

After paying out $200,000,000 to buy up coffee and destroying 26,000 sacks of 132 pounds each by burning or dumping in the sea within a three-year period, the Brazilian government announced that it had "restored statistical equilibrium" and won its toughest battle with over-production. That was in 1934. This wholesale destruction amounted to about the total coffee output of Brazil's competitors for those years.

But the battle was not won. Nature has a way of upsetting crop control arrangements, and so have domestic producers and foreign competitors who can see no advantage to themselves in artificial quotas and price parities. Now, while Brazil's new coffee policy has not been fully divulged, she is apparently embarking on full competition, reinforced by a 75 per cent cut in her export tax.

The minister of finance remarks that Brazil has been a "Santa Claus" to competitors. Analogous methods of crop restriction and price-fixing in our own country have stimulated our competitors to increased production and capture of foreign markets that were once an outlet for American farm exports, most notably cotton. Those who are now framing a new farm program for congress might profitably consider Brazil's experience in combating economic laws while pouring huge subsidies into a seemingly bottomless pit.

Let's see! What ever became of the motion picture production of "Gone With the Wind?"

What has happened to all the confirmed bachelors? Is it possible that they could have gotten married?

Legislation, says a bar chief, is hastily drawn. In addition, there is too much of it. Furthermore, most of it is bad.

Physical restoration of the war-ravaged sections of Europe is in its final stages. But the 10,000,000 dead remain so.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

TEACHER IS DEFENDED

Some while ago I presented the case of a teacher described by a high school student as making life miserable for the members of her class by her harsh and cruel words to them.

From a reader of that article came the following:

"Dear Sir: Your column entitled 'Can Ogre Be Good Teacher?' leads me to suggest the teacher's psychology be given a moment of thought. May not her expertise in her work be an 'escape' pattern in herself from a starved social life of her own? Even now, her suffering must be intense to seek so unsocial an outlet. The same causes that put her 'outside the pale' in her youth, may still operate in her life. And her own life's frustration either in neglect, or in social contacts and outlets, she may be finding so painful, so burdensome, as to seek to vent her bitterness upon these youth, whom she doubtless fancies have what she must be feeling she is shut out of."

"You see, sir, I also was regarded as an 'ogre' by my . . . children. I, was tender, and kind, and generous, to a fault, who was too immature to meet the problem of 'discipline' in a proper spirit. The very idea of being obliged to dam my warm feelings by exigent necessities made me so cross that I was unduly harsh. And defeated the ends desired, of which I was also totally ignorant."

"You see, at 20 or so, one has not had much time to gather wisdom, or even a knowledge of life . . . or of its laws . . . and purposes. Especially is this true, when you 'just growed', as Topsy did! Which I observe, is too commonly true of hosts of us."

SOME NEGLECTED

"There also is oft forgotten: that hosts of us belong to the neglected of life—the forgotten. We receive no attentions . . . ever. We seem situated so that no one . . . ever notices us. And painful beyond belief it is to be surrounded by the self-centered, the vain, the conceited, or the self-absorbed, who never know you are there. And who will never miss you, if gone. Who will never bother to talk to you . . . or to show you consideration . . . or kindness. We minister, as this teacher does, but without recognition, or credit . . . or kind words. Ever."

"This teacher's methods look like retaliation to me. And their harshness bespeaks a grudge against 'society', which she seems to be venting upon the small 'society' under her hand. Ostracism would but make her own state worse."

"I'd venture to suggest a besieging of the fort, if only to seek to uncover her psychological 'root'. If that class unitedly offered her 'attentions' of various kinds, in an effort to break her social outcast feeling, I'm curious to know whether I've probed her 'root' correctly. So send you this state worse."

"For 'open-minded' folk like you—who receive 'attention' I fear you can never fathom the great group's need, to which I, unfortunately, belong. There have always been two groups in life: the group in the sunshine and the group in the shadow. And it seems to be too much to expect to meet humanity. At least, I have found it so."

"Grateful for your helpful work."

It's my own fault and I don't agree with people who think trouble you've brought on yourself is the hardest to bear. When you step out and take a chance on life and lose, with your eyes wide open, when it's your fault—why SHOULD you complain?"

"That's your profit when it's your fault. That's your salvage, anyway. When it's your own fault you can get at least 10 cents on the dollar out of the week, and you can apply that thin dime to starting all over again—toward making another fool of yourself, perhaps, but under your own power.

Having the right shade to blend well with your ensemble is of course essential. But there is another important point, frequently overlooked by women—that of having their stockings so arranged that their seams are in vertical lines on the backs of their legs, swerving neither to the right nor to the left.

So often, we find women otherwise meticulously dressed whose stockings are carelessly twisted so that the heels slip into their shoes or the seams swerve to the sides of their legs.

Give your stockings frequent and careful inspection and avoid this dishevelment.

Dear Miss Market—Are wedding gifts usually sent to a divorce who remarries?

Answer—Very close friends send presents to the widow or divorcee who remarries, but general acquaintances usually do not, unless they especially wish. There is no obligation to do this at the second marriage as there is at the first.

Many Voters Failed To Mark Ballots Properly In Recent Election

In spite of educational propaganda that has been carried on for many years, in spite of the fact that spoiling a ballot has been made a difficult thing, voters are still invalidating their vote by improper markings.

"It is an amazing thing" said the judge of elections in one second ward precinct. "We polled a good vote last Tuesday over 300 and yet out of that number there were at least sixty ballots that were invalidated in whole or in part. Some of them voted a straight ticket and voted for candidates of both parties in the individual slots."

"Others marked their ballot with a check mark instead of an X, still others wrote in Yes or No on the amendments instead of a cross. Others were indefinite in their markings. Where the intent of the voter seemed plain we counted the ballot but many of them were thrown out."

As simple as the ballot is these days there are still some rules that must be followed. Ballots are to be marked with pencil and NOT pen and ink. The will of the voter is to be set down by an X and not a check mark. The word Yes or No is not to be written on the ballot.

Not only the voters do not follow the rules but election boards are guilty of error. When a voter presents himself at the polls to vote he must sign his name and address. If this does not check with the registration list, if he has moved to another address even in the same precinct and has not changed his registration, he is not to vote.

In one precinct 22 voters cast ballots, who had changed their addresses. The board simply did not check their address with the registration list.

Tax Changes Seem Certain

Expect Undistributed Profits Tax Will Be Partially Lifted

CONGRESS DEMANDS BURDEN BE ALTERED

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—Business and industrial interests of New Castle may feel reasonably assured that the burden of the undistributed profits tax will be partially lifted by Congress within the next few months.

This tax is one of President Roosevelt's brain children. He sent a special message to Congress urging its enactment and hailed it as a new deal hand which would force the redistribution of wealth. Now, regardless of how the President may feel, Congress is in a mood to substantially alter this corporate

To Provide "Cushions"

It does not seem likely the entire tax will be repealed. It appears almost certain, however, that Congress will write in "cushions" to protect the small business man, establishments in debt, and the industrial plant wishing to expand.

This new form of tax received wide congressional approval when sent to the Capitol by the White House. Those who warned against pumping the corporate well dry were shouted down. Congress was eager to lash corporations into distributing their income, without regard to indebtedness, expansion, or future security.

Should Have Been Provisos

It is now apparent that both legislation bodies have come to agree

Wheeler, for instance), who never could become Republicans, are anti-New Deal.

Might not a third party catch them?

INCREASING TALK

There was a bit of this chat at the last regular congressional session. It did not amount to much then. This fall there is a considerable volume of it. The lawmakers have been home in the meantime and such seems to be their reaction. It is not violent but it is noticeable.

Most of it comes from the middle northwest.

It is a farmer movement, which seeks for eastern labor sympathy.

Senator Wheeler, as we recall, ran for the vice presidency on a third party ticket. Representative William Lemke of North Dakota ran as a third party presidential candidate in the last national campaign. They did not make much of a dent, but "hope springs eternal".

BALLOT DIFFICULTY

The weakness of a third party candidate is that, in many states, the electoral machinery makes it impossible for him even to get his name on the official ballots. It has to be written in by the individual voter. Naturally not many voters will take as much trouble as that.

Yet, who can tell?—in the event of a landslide?

Naturally, no rational person looks for so great a landslide in 1940. The glace is ahead to 1944, if ever.

CAUSES SOME WORRY

True, they do not believe that a third party ever can win, but there always is the risk that it will get a large enough vote to prevent any ticket from having a majority (as distinguished from a plurality) in the presidential electoral college.

In which event the selection would be thrown into the house of representatives.

Think what a fight that would involve!

FARMER-LABOR?

Furthermore, a third party must be a farmer-labor party.

Urban labor's and agriculture's interests OUGHT to be identical, but they are NOT under our economic system.

So get them together, in one party!

REALIGNMENT DIFFICULT

Republicans, on an average, are quite so thoroughly dyed-in-the-wool as Democrats. Generally speaking, a Republican, if angry enough at G. O. P. managerial policies, will bolt his party. We have seen traditionally Republican states flop bodily in recent years. Still, there are many Republicans who never will admit that they have become Democrats.

Few Democrats, especially in the south, will make the admission that they have turned Republican. They stick to the Democratic label, no matter how anti-New Deal they may be.

NEW PARTY EASIER?

Now, might not these anti-New Deal Democrats, while forever anti-Republican also, be willing to ally themselves with a new party, unbranded with "Dam-Yankeeism"?

And might it not be less painful for a rockbound Republican to join a new party than to confess that he has turned Democratic?

Third-partyites, asking these questions, incline to answer affirmatively.

Besides, they argue, a lot of good Republicans, who hate the New Deal, nevertheless are just as bitter against the G. O. P. old guard—Representative Hamilton Fish, for example. Contrariwise, some very liberal Democrats (Senator Burton K.

However, up to 10 a. m., today none of the proprietors of stores where "boards" were robbed had identified them. The youths, all of whom claim Chicago as a residence, claim they were enroute to New York when taken into custody.

They were arrested after they were alleged to have played the marble-boards in different stores Friday.

Groups Continue To Work On Seals

The work on the anti-tuberculosis seals for the Yuletide season continues, with several groups of women giving their services in aiding in the folding and placing of the seals in envelopes.

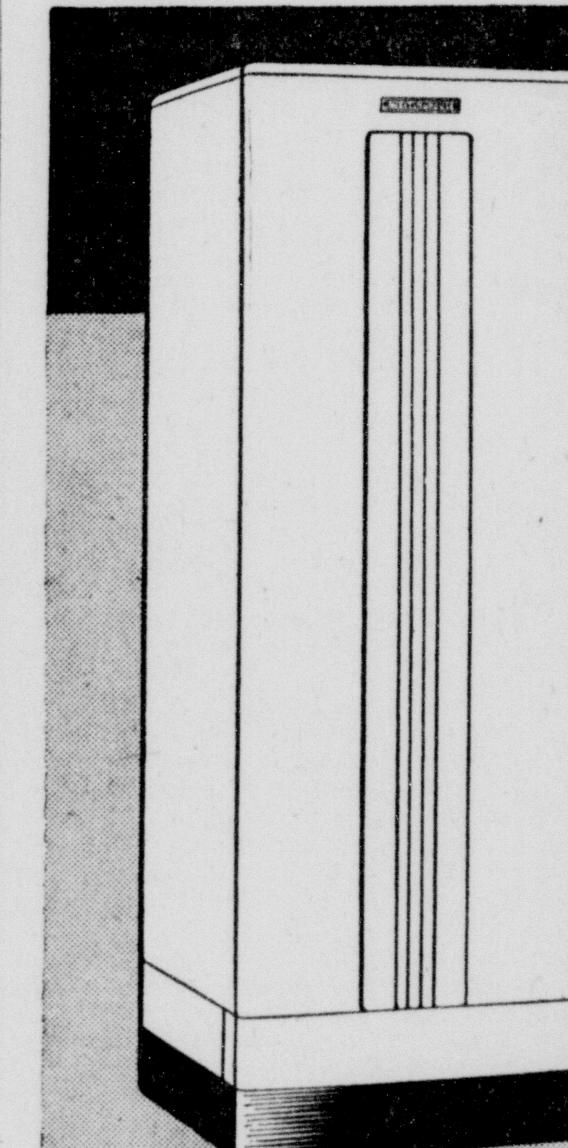

On Thursday, another group from

St. Mary's church assembled at the headquarters, 117½ South Mercer street, and carried on with the work.

Chairman was Mrs. Joseph Dolan in charge. She had assisting her Mrs. Cecil Suber, Mrs. J. T. O'Leary and Miss Sara M. Flynn. In addition to this number, a young group, identified as the Girl Scout Troop No. 14 of St. Mary's church, are to be equally complimented for their services, as they, too, worked right along with the older women and accomplished much.

Included in the Girl Scout troop were Stella Habib, Florence Fee, Kathryn Fraizer, Betty Callahan, Louise Ann Daly, Jean Maher, Mary Stinard, Rose Jennings, Virginia Bracken and Zada Wadlinger.

When married people never go out together, they have become so conscious of one another's faults that each is ashamed to be seen in public with the other.

Defeat Of Franklin High
Gives Mahoning Junior
High Championship

M'KEE STARS IN WELL PLAYED GAME

George Washington Junior High for the first time in a number of years handed the Ben Franklin Junior High team a 7 to 0 defeat yesterday at the stadium. McKee was the star of the game.

The Washington victory incidentally gave the 1937 junior high school championship to the Mahoning Junior High team coached by Austin Cowmeadow. This being the first year Mahoning h ever won the title.

The North Hillers journeyed to the East Side arena with a determination to end the Franklin High supremacy. It was a hard fight, but the boys coached by Art Alexander came through nobly.

Neither side could gain much ground in the first period. It was mostly an even battle in the middle of the court. In the second period Washington threatened several times but could not score. The first half ended 0 to 0.

McKee Scores

Opening the second half the Washington team carried the ball from the Franklin 30 over the goal line. McKee lugging the ball across the final chalked stripe. In the Washington drive Burris, McKee and Fee played prominent roles. McKee also made the extra-point.

The Washington victory was made possible by the hard charging of the front wall led by Captain Rucker and Sisley. The best bet in the Washington backfield was Fred McKee who looks like the best backfield man in the junior high circuit. Burris also deserves mention for his fine line plunging. All of the Franklin High ground was gained by Roberts, with Wash. High having a lot of respect for this hard running back. Franklin never got within the 30-yard line at any time.

Rain Refreshes More Than Earth

McIntyre Has Urge To Write Great American Novel During Rain-storm

SPANIARDS ARE EARLIEST RISERS

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—Day is breaking after one of those stormy nights I love so well. Zigzags of brilliant lightning, crashes of thunder and rain in buckets. Out the window all the universe seems refreshed, buoyant and glistening in the light of the morning.

Many sing the praises of India for its various mysteries. Its appeal to me is in its monsoons. No phenomenon has the wallop of dry earth soaking up a downpour and burgeoning into lovely bloom. The chief charm of Paris is in those sudden flurries that make every Frenchman an umbrella carrier.

Often I have swum up from sound sleep, sluggish and weary with the gravity of affairs; heard the patter of rain and felt like kicking off the covers and indulging in a capriole. There is an after-rain fragrance, even among the man-made cliffs, that chirks the spirits.

The rain is responsible for being at my desk at 6 a.m. with nothing to say, but a surge to write. If I had the gift to turn out the Great American Novel, I'd like to do the job on a screened-in porch during a tropical rain at Pango Pango.

Out in a Pittsburgh suburb is a man of prominence who told me that he lived on a remote country estate solely because the isolation permitted him to wander through the grounds in shorts during the rains. Abraham Lincoln was keen for rains and some of his momentous decisions were made while trudging along in a down-pour. Showmen are heir to the value of the rain theme. Willie Collier's "Caught in the Rain" and Somerset Maugham's later "Rain". The outstanding hit of a successful movie revue showed a chorus dancing in the rain.

Snow has almost—but not quite—the emotional tug of rain for me. The picture I enjoy most in my meagre collection is a Virginia snow scene by Percy Crosby. It's fun to get up early this way now and then and beat the barrier with a column. The early riser always interests me. Because I am a late sleeper as a rule, he seems from another world. I am the laggard of an early rising family. My father was always up at 5 a.m., a habit he could not break even after he retired. My grandfather arose at 4 a.m.

Caught in a mistral while motor-ing, we were once forced to spend the night at a farmhouse near the French border, in San Sebastian, Spain. My gnarled host asked what time he should awaken us and it was suggested we would be ready any time he had breakfast. Before daylight he knocked and brought in a tray of steaming and fiery fumadoes, filled with hot and burning native spices. It was a dish with the stimulating qualities of a triple brandy on an empty stomach. He said he had been up awhile but decided to let us sleep a little late. We were on our way before 4 a.m. I have been told that rural Spain has long been the earliest rising of all peoples. I can believe it.

His stock market stabilization plan contained these four recommendations:

1—That monthly reports on loans of stock be required from large corporate holders engaged in short selling on the stock market.

2—That the "manipulative clause" of the securities and exchange act be clarified by the S.E.C.

3—Simplification of "inside" buying by large corporate holders of their own securities.

4—Equalization of marginal requirements for both long and short securities sales.

The governors expressed unanimous approval and will draft resolutions to President Roosevelt and the special session of congress when they meet again November 18 in connection with the 13th annual New England council conference.

AROUND CITY HALL

Motorcycle Policemen George Sigler and John Wincek last month arrested 17 auto speeders, all of whom were fined by Mayor Charles E. McGrath. The officers ride at different times in various sections of the city. They not only watch for speeders and reckless operators, but reply to calls for police service, inspect parking meters and watch for other motorists who retard the spark on their "steeds," thus annoying residents with a machine-gun noise.

RINASCENZA LODGE Sunday afternoon in King Humbert hall, Division street, members of Rinascenza Lodge No. 19 will gather for their regular meeting.

Card Of Thanks To our many friends who expressed their love and kindness in our bereavement we wish to thank them most sincerely. Also for beautiful flowers and use of cars.

Persons who engage in brails upon public highways seldom go unscathed financially unless they are the innocent victims of an attack and are forced to defend themselves according to police records. Not so long ago His Honor, the mayor, levied a financial plaster on the combatant following which he asserted that "no one can engage in a street fight and expect to escape punishment."
